We offer free, confidential and independent advocacy services to help people understand their rights, be treated as equals and be heard.
The IMCA service is delivered by POhWER in partnership with Advocacy Matters.

When someone cannot ask for an advocate themselves, because they do not have the capacity to do so due to brain injury, disability or illness, it does not mean that their views and wishes should not be taken into account.

People over the age of 16 who lack capacity, and do not have an appropriate family member or friend to represent their views, are legally entitled to an Independent Mental Capacity Advocate (if decisions are being made about serious medical treatment or a change of accommodation). In some cases, where the person is vulnerable, they can have an advocate even if they do have family or friends.

Our Independent Mental Capacity Advocates gather information about individuals referred to our service to help decision makers, such as doctors and other health and social care professionals, to reach ‘best interest’ decisions about elements of their treatment and care.
Our IMCA DoLS Advocates protect the human rights of people who lack capacity - their lives and movements are continually being controlled by care staff in order to keep them safe. This means that they may be being deprived of their liberty for their own safety. Our advocates work with them to ensure that their rights under the Mental Capacity Act are upheld and that the deprivation is lawful, proportionate and in their best interests.

The service is available to anyone over 18 who cannot understand the decisions being made about them and do not have family or friends.

Referrals are made through the Local Authority.
